PORTSMOUTH FROM BADGER'S ISLAND

INTRODUCTION.

New Hampshire was settled in 1623, and in genealogical and historical records is one of the richest states in America. There has been for many years a growing interest in genealogical research. The New Hampshire Genealogical Society was incorporated by special act of the legislature, approved February 24, 1903, and was organized on the ninth day of the following month. With the advent of the new society, the need of a magazine, devoted to New Hampshire genealogy and the interests of the society, was felt at once. The by-laws provide for such a magazine and fix its name. An arrangement has been entered into whereby the editor assumes its support and conduct, and though under private management, it is the official organ of the society.

The chief object of this magazine is to preserve, by publication therein, the genealogical records of New Hampshire. There are many town histories having a large space devoted to genealogies, which, as published, are often incorrect and incomplete, depending upon the extent of the research of the author, but the publication, in full, of the original records from which these genealogies are compiled, is seldom or never attempted.

In publishing the original records, an exact transcript, verbatim et literatim, will be given, which in every case will be verified with the utmost care and pains, and a reference to the original record, book and page, will follow or precede each record. The records will be printed each town or city by itself, under running titles, and these divided into subtitles. The records include births, marriages, deaths, intentions of marriage, gravestone inscriptions, baptisms, admissions and dismissions from the churches, tax lists, subscription lists, landgrants, town meeting records, probate records and original wills, deeds, civil and criminal court records, proprietors records, Bible records, diaries, journals, letters, obituary notices, parish records, colonial, provincial and state records, Revolutionary and other soldiers' muster and pay rolls, only a part of which have as yet been published, genealogical records from England and other places pertaining to New Hampshire families, old newspaper news-items, &c. Nine-tenths of the public records are not indexed, and none of them have an index of names. There will be printed at the end of each volume a complete index of names.

Genealogical sketches of the families of the early settlers will occasionally be inserted, together with biographical notices of persons prominent in New Hampshire history, or descended from New Hampshire ancestors, also the Proceedings of The New Hampshire Genealogical Society.

THE EDITOR.

EXPLANATION.

The following abbreviations will sometimes be used. References to records by giving the initial letter, the number of volume in Roman numerals, and page in figures thus: (P. T. R., I: 10.) would be the abbreviation for Portsmouth Town Records, Volume 1, page 10. All words that are unintelligible or torn off are represented by leaders . . . .

In the genealogies: bapt. for baptized; b. for born; m. for married: d. for died; dau. for daughter.

INVITATION AND APPEAL.

The New Hampshire Genealogical Society has now become a state institution. It is only four months old, is an active, healthy, growing society; it has come to stay. An invitation is extended to all persons interested in the welfare of New Hampshire and its people to become members of this society. A blank for application for membership will be forwarded to any person wishing to become a member and requesting the same, and when filled out and signed by the applicant, will be duly presented at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees for acceptance. The annual membership fee is two dollars, payable in advance each year; the life membership fee is twenty-five dollars, payable when the person is elected to membership. The usefulness of the society will depend largely upon a good library. It takes money to purchase books. If those persons interested in genealogical and historical work would each contribute a book, or books, or some sum of money, however small, towards the establishment of a library, the society would be very grateful for the gift, and due acknowledgment will hereafter be given in this magazine for all books and sums of money so contributed. All books and sums of money for the library should be sent to C. W. Tibbetts, Financial Agent and Librarian, Dover, N. H.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE
GENEALOGICAL RECORD.

VOL. I. DOVER, N. H., OCTOBER, 1903. NO. 2.

FRIENDS RECORDS,
DOVER, N. H., MONTHLY MEETING.

MARRIAGES.

[The date of the organization of the Friends Society, in Dover, is not known. The old book of records, of the society, is said to have been lost, many years ago. The book now known as Volume I, beginning with March 21, 1701–2, should without doubt be called Volume II. The first marriage certificate, recorded in that book, bears date November 6, 1701; which was nearly five months before the beginning of the book; and the certificate recites, that the parties had declared their intentions of marriage, at a previous monthly meeting of the society, in Dover. The marriage certificates were recorded, not as issued, but whenever the parties brought them to the clerk for record; sometimes not for ten or twenty years after the date of the marriage. The marriage certificates are very long, similarly worded, and attested by many witnesses. In the following pages, one marriage certificate has been printed in full, to show their usual form, and afterwards the marriage records were made, by copying the names and residences of the parties, as given in each certificate, following the exact wording but correcting the spelling, down to the word married, which has been inserted to abbreviate the long record, following which the place and date of marriage have been given same as in certificate. The marriages have been arranged chronologically. Marriage certificates are found in four volumes of the Friends records, each volume is indexed in name of groom, thus furnishing a ready reference should it be found desirable to consult the original. Prior to 1752, the year began on March 25, and March was called the first month, and February the twelfth month, of the year. To avoid confusion in dates, the number of the month has been left out, and the name retained, as the same number would not always refer to the same month; on the marriage certificates both the number and name of month are usually given.]

EXPLANATION.

Owing to circumstances over which we had no control, the October number goes to our patrons, some two and one-half months late. In the first place, the editor did not return from his genealogical and historical trip to Europe, until the twenty-second day of September, some three weeks later than he intended; it was simply impossible to get passage back in time, as every berth and stateroom on the different steamships had been secured, in many cases months in advance. The copy was quickly sent to the printers and if it had not been for another delay, the October number would have been only about one week late. The printers kept the copy some two weeks and then reported, that, on account of press of work and the type moulders strike, they could not print the magazine under two months, as all of their type was in use and they could not get new. To save future delay we undertook to start a printing plant of our own, as the magazine has come to stay, new type was ordered same as that used in July number, but the type moulders strike held up the matter for two months. We have at last secured a part of the type, and by cutting out, to some future time, the remainder of the gravestone inscriptions in Point of Graves cemetery and some other matter we had intended for this issue, we herewith present the October number, asking the kind indulgence of our patrons, for the delay. We hope to issue the January number with but little, if any, delay.

BOOK NOTICES.

Old Kittery and Her Families. By Rev. Everett S. Stackpole, D. D. 8 vo., pp. 822. 100 illustrations. Published by Lewiston Journal Company. 1903.

This book is crowded full of historical and genealogical details about the old families of Kittery, Eliot and South Berwick, and therefore contains many items about old families of Portsmouth, Durham and Dover. An important feature of the book is the maps, locating the original settlers, from Braveboat Harbor up the river to above Salmon Falls. Fac similes of the autographs of many original settlers, are given, as signed to the submission to the Massachusetts government in 1652. The story of the early settlement, of conflicts with the Indians, of ecclesiastical affairs, etc., is compactly told. One reader calls it "a mine of information." Special attention has been given to genealogy, and the Fernalds, Frosts, Gunnisons, Hanscoms, Hills, Lords, Nasons, Remicks, Shapleighs, Tobeys, and many other families may here find their ancestral history told more fully than anywhere else. All points of historic interest are shown by illustrations, as well as the faces of a score of leading citizens. The labors of many have been utilized in the preparation of this town history, and every page shows painstaking research. The character of the first settlers does not suffer at the hands of the author. From old Kittery have gone out colonists all over Maine and New Hampshire and into every western state. Their descendants will be interested in this story of their ancestors.

The price of the book is five dollars ($5) and it may be ordered of the author at Bradford, Mass.

The Babcock Genealogy. Compiled by Stephen Babcock, A. M., Instructor New York School for the Blind, New York City. Press of Eaton and Mains. 1903. 8vo., pp. 889.

The compiling of a good genealogy, of one of the old families of America, is a task that requires many years of careful, patient, painstaking labor. The Babcock Genealogy which is before us and which we have perused with pleasure, is an exceptionally fine work. It is the result of many years of research. The author Mr. Stephen Babcock, A. M., of New York City, has given a great part of his time for the last thirty years to gathering Babcock records, while Col. A. J. Babcock, of Springfield, Ill., Mr. A. Emerson Babcock, of Brighton, N. Y., and Mr. Edwin Babcock, of Westerly, R. I., have each rendered most valuable assistance in collecting Babcock family records, all of which records were placed at the disposal of the author. The Babcock family generally ought to be proud of this genealogy. Its eight hundred and eighty-nine pages were written with great care as to accuracy; without accuracy a genealogy is worse than useless, however pleasing it may be written, or well printed and bound. Ninty four full-page illustrations, consisting of portraits, houses and other objects of interest, show that expense in this department has not been spared. It was printed with new type, on fine white paper, and is a model of the printers art. The family coat-of-arms is given as a frontispiece, in three colors, finely blended. The index contains 18,365 names, including the names of the parents of the husbands and wives who married into the Babcock family.

The emigrant ancestor of the Babcock family was James Babcock or Badcock as the name was formally spelled and is now spelled in England, who settled in Portsmouth, R. I., sometime prior to 1642, and later in 1662 removed to Westerly, R. I., where he died, June 12, 1679. The Rev. Charles Henry Babcock, D. D., contributed an article of eight pages on the coat-of-arms and the origin of the family; and Mr. A. Emerson Babcock collected the names of the descendants of Isaiah Babcock of the fifth generation. His records are published as prepared by him.

Tax Rolls and a variety of other valuable records concerning these closely linked western counties which sent so many sons to the American colonies. The annual subscription will be one guinea. The movement is receiving support locally from the nobility and gentry but the expense of transcribing and printing being considerable and these records being of as much if not greater interest abroad as at home, a large roll of membership is sought among "men of the west" beyond the seas. Will all Societies and persons wishing to join as members or to aid the work kindly communicate with Mr. Reynell-Upham, Hon. Sec., (pro tem.) 4 Rill Terrace, Exmouth, Eng. A meeting will be held in Exeter, and the Society started as soon as sufficient names are received. The Rt. Hon. The Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe has kindly consented to be nominated as first President of the Society.

NOTICE.

The great majority of the early settlers of New Hampshire came from the counties of Devon and Cornwall, England, and as many persons may be desirous of looking up their ancestry in those two counties, it may be well to state that Mr. William U. Reynell-Upham of 4 Rill Terrace, Exmouth, Devon Co., England, is a corresponding member of The New Hampshire Genealogical Society. He is a genealogist of experience and would be glad to make a special search for any person on very liberal terms. His advertisement may be found on the third page of the cover of this magazine. The New Hampshire Genealogical Society hope to have corresponding members at Edinburgh, Scotland, Dublin, Ireland, London and several other places in England, in the near future.

FRIENDS MEETING-HOUSE, DOVER, N. H., ERECTED 1768.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE
GENEALOGICAL RECORD.

Vol. I. Dover, N. H., April, 1904. No. 4.

NEW JERSEY'S INDEBTEDNESS TO NEW HAMPSHIRE.

By O. B. Leonard, Plainfield, N. J.

In the fall of 1666 a half dozen families of brave men and women living on the banks of the Piscataqua river in New Hampshire, moved to the rich farming lands on the Raritan river in New Jersey. They emigrated at the solicitations, of friends from Newbury, Mass., who had just settled at Woodbridge, an adjoining township in New Jersey, during the summer of the same year. In fact these New Hampshire pioneers bought their Jersey property of these Massachusetts friends. The newly appointed Governor of New Jersey, Philip Carteret, had agreed to a settlement which was to comprise one or two plantations provided sixty or more families were located thereon within three years. To facilitate the speedy planting of the province, the Governor had early dispatched agents into New England to publish the unsurpassed privileges to be guaranteed all settlers in East Jersey. His laws afforded generous terms to new comers in the way of land grants and allowed perfect freedom of conscience in religious beliefs, while at the same time there was thrown around the pioneer every desirable safeguard for his personal liberty. One of the specially attractive concessions was the following: "no person shall be any ways molested, punished, disquited or called in question for any difference in opinion or practice in matters of religious concernment, but all such persons may freely and fully have and enjoy conscience in matters of religion throughout the Province."

These inducements and promises made by the Jersey

Governor's messengers, had a persuasive influence among the discontented Puritans and others of New England and the dissatisfied colonies of Englishmen among the Dutch on Long Island. Under these encouraging circumstances a few of the New Hampshire planters settled a township on the Raritan river which they at once called New Piscataqua, after the name of the district they came from. This territory embraced about 40,000 acres and deed for it was dated Dec. 18, 1666, made in the names of John Martin, Hopewell Hull, Charles Gilman and Hugh Dunn. In company with these, there were very shortly thereafter, in the same Jersey settlement, families of Drake, Langstaff, Greenland, Giles, Wooden and others.

All these settlers in New Jersey emigrated from New Hampshire. As their number increased in New Piscataqua on the Raritan, they pushed inland for better farming accommodations. Wherever a nucleus located they affixed familiar names of New Hampshire towns to their little hamlets. To this day in this same New Jersey township referred to are the small villages of New Dover, New Durham, New Market, all in the original New Piscataqua township, Middlesex County.

Previous to the settlement of this colony in New Jersey they with other pioneers had experienced some rough treatment in their New England home, under the early government first of the Plymouth Company and afterwards of the London Corporation. The original settlers of Dover and vicinity 1623–30 were high church Episcopalians. Those who settled in that region ten years subsequently were Puritan dissenters from the Church of England. At once religious contentions arose and civil usurpations characterized the dominant party. This caused an unsettled state of affairs and inclined many persons to leave the province.

About 1640–41 some of the more devout people in New Hampshire and others near by, disheartened and discouraged with the intolerance in religious matters and uncertainity in civil affairs, emigrated to the western end of Long Island. It was no exception to the general conditions of society throughout the larger part of New England at this time, that turbulent strifes existed in the Piscataqua region. Magistrates and Ministers kept the early New England colonists in turmoil. The people were clearly divided into three classes the commonalty, the gentry and the clergy.

The first class comprised by far the greatest number of settlers with varying views on State and Church. The gentry monopolized the chief secular offices and managed to avoid all censure from the local courts. The clergy possessed a controlling influence in politics as well as religious affairs. They held the masses in their grasp and shrank from no movement to guard the interests of the established church order. They were the educated class of the community and became an absolute oligarchy, venerated and obeyed by most of the commonalty and others.

In every other section of New England except New Hampshire, none but church members were admitted to full citizenship. If not united with the established church, settlers were without political rights. The meeting house was the place of religious worship and the place for public business of the town.

The few non-conformist preachers and their limited number of followers found it impossible to live in peace and prosperity against the corruptions and oppression of the leaders of the Church of England. Among the dissenters from Episcopacy and from stern Puritanism were the patentees of New Piscataqua in New Jersey. Most of these original settlers on the Raritan had been under the religious influence of instruction tending to Baptists doctrines. Hanserd Knollys at Dover planted such spiritual seed as early as 1638–41 which sprang up in sympathy with the denomination that had Roger Williams for its first founder in America.

In confirmation of the statement that these pioneers of Piscataway, N. J., were imbued with Baptist principles, reference is hereby made to the report of Rev. David Humphreys on the work of the missionaries of the Church of England while proselyting in New Jersey and other American colonies 1702–28. "Several of the inhabitants in Piscataway are infected with the errors of the Anabaptists and Sabbatarians." In another place it was written to the parent society in England that, "the Anabaptists swarm in these parts and hold their meetings in the Town house." Morgan Edwards a reliable historian of the Colonial Baptists has said "were we to judge of the religion of these settlers by the list of members in the two Baptist churches of Piscataqua, N. J., we should conclude they were of that denomination, for most of the names are to be found in these lists."

It is clearly evident to the careful student of history that the restrictions on the exercise of free conscience of those religiously inclined, had induced a large number of the New Englanders to settle in New Jersey. This was true not only with people imbued with Baptist doctrines, but also with those who were zealous adherents of the recently founded sect of Quakers. In fact subsequent to 1682, at which date East Jersey was purchased at auction in London, by William Penn and other Friends, the whole colony was under Quaker government for a while.

New Piscataqua or Piscataway as it was afterward called was from the first a planation of pious people, determined on enjoying the liberty of the Gospel and the exercise of individual freedom in secular affairs.

Among the first permanent settlers from New Hampshire to New Jersey, as noted in the deed of sale of New Piscataqua on the Raritan, was HUGH DUNN. A brief genealogical sketch of his descendants will be given in the following pages.

As a foreword relating to this patronymic it may be said that an early mention of the Dunn name in America, known to the writer was in 1647. The reference is to Thomas Dunn of Weymouth who went to Rehoboth and New Haven 1648 and died 1661 at Fairfield, Conn. In 1655 mention is made of Richard Dunn of Newport. February 5, 1667, Ephraim Done married Mercy Knowles. In 1675 William Dunn was one of the first purchasers of land at Taunton. There was a John Done made a freeman at Plymouth, Mass., 1632–33, and made later a member of the Council and shortly thereafter chosen a deacon of the Pilgrim Church at that place. A John Dunn was a passenger on the vessel "Bonaventure" in 1633–34.

Whether any of these had family relationships to the progenitor of the Dunn line in Piscataway of East Jersey the compiler cannot say. The name has been spelled various ways, Dun, Done, Donn, Dunne, Dunn. The last form became the accepted orthography.

The first definite trace of HUGH DUNN, the subject of this genealogical sketch, is met among the landowners of New Hampshire as early as 1663. In that year HUGH DUNN was received a freeman in Dover and had a 10 acre grant for a house lot located for him below Lamprey River lower falls July 18, 1664. He also received a grant of 20 acres up the river at "Sandey Bank" a short distance above the falls. The former was in present New Market township and the latter in the town of Durham.

On account of the disquietude in property holdings and unsettled land titles, HUGH DUNN disposed of his real estate in the Piscataqua region of New Hampshire and transferred his citizenship to New Jersey 1666–1670. Aside from his interest as one of the original patentees in 1666 of the large township of New Piscataway in East Jersey, HUGH DUNN became owner 1670–72 of 92 acres in adjoining township of Woodbridge. His permanent home he made in Piscataway and here in 1678 he had a patent for 138 acres of land and the following year took title for additional real estate.

Among the first public notices of his name are the cattle marks recorded for him in the Old Town Book 1686. About the same date his name is found with five other men as forming the constituency of the Piscataway Baptist church. His active associates in this religious movement were Edmund Dunham, John Drake, John Smalley, Nicholas Bonham and John Fitz Randolph, all New England acquaintances. From the first Mr. Dunn, Mr. Drake and Mr. Dunham acted as exhorters or lay preachers, encouraging the early settlers in a life of consistent christain living. HUGH DUNN lived for several years after the public organization of the Baptist Church. He saw this religious society well established under the first official pastorate of John Drake his brother-in-law. He died November 16, 1694, his last Will and Testament being dated October 7, 1691 and probated December 10, 1694. This early document is on file in the Prerogative Court at Trenton, N. J.

The following is a genealogical outline of HUGH DUNN'S decendants.

*These were the parents of John Greenleaf Whittier, the poet. The name of wife, of Samuel Hussey, is here given as Mercy, and is correct; in another place in the Friends Records, it is plainly given as Mary, and supposing the latter name to be correct, it was so given in record of Samuel Hussey's marriage, page 67, where the record could read equally well Marey or Marcy. In the Hussey Bible the name is Mercy Evans and certain wills and deeds prove the name to be Mercy, beyond a doubt. Abigail Hussey was granddaughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (Robinson) (Tibbetts) Hussey and great-granddaughter of Richard and Jane Hussey of Dover. It is certain that Richard Hussey was not a descendant of Capt. Christopher Hussey, of Hampton; that he was a son of Robert Hussey, of Dover, is very doubtful; he was the emigrant according to tradition.—Ed.

DOVER TAX RATE.

[Dover was settled in 1623. Its citizens, like those of Strawberry Bank and Exeter, early adopted a form of town and provincial government of their own. Dover was annexed to Massachusetts, by vote of its citizens, October 9, 1641. The early town and provincial books were destroyed soon after the annexation to Massachusetts. Dover's oldest town book now in existence was begun December 27, 1647; it has the following town rate which is the earliest tax rate of Dover now on record.]

ANSWER TO QUERY THREE.

Susanna, daughter of Richard and Alice (Creebar) Shortridge married Reuben Abbott, 9 Oct. 1715. Reuben Abbott died in 1745 and his widow married a Pitman sometime between 1748 and 1756. She is evidently not the mother of Mary Pitman. I know of no other Susanna Pitman.

Richard Shortridge's wife Mary was a granddaughter of Joseph Mead of Portsmouth, a currier. Joseph Pitman, Benjamin Pitman and Mark Pitman were also grandchildren of Joseph Mead, and therefore probably brothers of Mary. Who their father was, I do not know.
